Scholarly and Professional Activities

Outreach and Ongoing
Collaborations

- I.a.8 – Collaboration with Prof. Joanne Clark (Archaeologist - University of East Anglia, Norwich) focusing on the integration of archaeological and linguistic data in connection with the emergence of the Pharaonic State in the late Neolithic. The aim is to apply for a joined grant on this topic next year.
- I.a.7 – Collaboration with Prof. Chantrain (University of Louvain-la-Neuve): investigation of contact-induced and areal linguistic connections between Egypt and neighbouring African societies. My focus is on syntax and lexicon; Prof. Chantrain’s on semantics and conceptual metaphors. Objectives: (1) illuminate historical interactions between Pharaonic Egypt and its southern neighbours; (2) reposition Ancient Egypt within a broader African sociocultural and socio-semantic landscape. Part of the ERC project I am currently preparing.
- I.a.6 – Prof. Sharon Stocker and Prof. Jack Davis (Cincinnati University): study and publication of the new Late Bronze Age Egypt- and Levant-related objects from their current excavations at Pylos, in Greece
- I.a.5 – Collaboration with Prof. Marten Lutz (SOAS), Prof. Hannah Gibson (University of Essex), Prof. Robin Meyer (University of Lausanne), et alii in a project labelled “Reconstructing Contact” that aims at establishing a research group and network to critically reconsider the methodologies employed in historical linguistics, integrating and expanding them with the contribution of more holistic approaches focusing on contemporary and historical sociolinguistic, archaeology, ethnography, and social sciences.
- I.a.4 – Dr. Tiago Tresoldi (Originally Uppsala University, Sweden, now independent researcher): developing a software (in the form of a opensource library) for easy-to-use and easy-to-deploy online databases (requiring no specific technical knowledge and editable directly through excel-like files) specifically targeted at linguists and archaeologists, to make the collecting and sharing of data simpler, more efficient, and more convenient.
- I.a.3 – Consultant since 2020 as a linguist and Egyptologist (specializing in writing) for the Swiss project and association KomunIKON, which is developing a coherent iconic visual language to facilitate communication across various modern contexts (public spaces, education, emergency situations, and support for individuals with disabilities, etc.)
<https://www.komunikon.com/en>
- I.a.2 – Participation as invited speaker to the Television documentary series La Storia Infinita in 2022, aired by the Italian speaking branch of the Swiss National Television (Radiotelevisione della Svizzera Italiana) – Active role as consultant in the following editions, including the current one
- I.a.1 – Since 2017: Various outreach activities in Canton Ticino, through various public schools (Primary school, Middle School, High school) and through the Associazione Archeologica Ticinese, focusing on Ancient Egypt, Egyptology, Archaeology and reception of the past in general.

Archaeological
Fieldwork and Projects

- I.b.7 – Feb. 2023 – Research visit to the site of Pylos (Greece) in the context of the collaboration with Prof. Sharon Stocker and Prof. Jack Davis
- I.b.6 – 2013-2017 – Research visits at the National Museum of Beirut and archaeological site of Byblos (Lebanon) in the context of my PhD
- I.b.5 – Oct.-Nov. 2015 – Courtételle (Jura, Switzerland)
- I.b.4 – Jul.-Aug. 2012 – University of Lausanne (Vaud, Switzerland) – Analysis and classification of the material from the Gallo-Roman sites of Le Chasseron and Orbe-Boscéaz (Switzerland)
- I.b.3 – Aug. 2010 – Church of Cevio (Ticino, Switzerland)
- I.b.2 – Jul. 2008, Aug. 2009 – Tremona-Castello (Ticino, Switzerland)
- I.b.1 – Jul.-Aug 2007 – Castel di Pietra (Tuscany, Italy - University of Siena)

UG : undergraduate

MA : master

PhD : doctoral level

Supervision

- I.c.1 – 2025-2026 – Basel University – Supervision of a Master’s thesis integrating archaeological, historical, iconographic, and linguistic data to explore the introduction of selected Levantine crops into Ancient Egypt.

Courses

- I.d.18 – May 2026 – Basel University – Letters in Ancient Egypt [BA/MA Level] (invited as for one lecture)

Preliminary Title: From Prehistory to Modernity: A Sociohistorical Investigation of Selected Basic Concepts in Egyptian

Summary: The project aims to explore the linguistic and sociohistorical development of approximately 500 terms denoting basic concepts (e.g. basic verbs, body parts, basic technologies, kinship terms, emotions/cognition, etc.) at various points in time across the full history of the Egyptian language, from its earliest attestations at the end of prehistory to the contemporary Coptic revitalization movements. It will comprise two main components. The first, linguistic in nature, will investigate the etymology, origins, innovations, borrowings, and overall evolution of the terms expressing the selected concepts over nearly five millennia of documented history. The second will examine how changes in these lexical items correlate with broader historical and sociocultural developments attested in archaeological and textual evidence, such as the formation of the early Pharaonic state, the political fragmentation of the Second Intermediate Period, Egypt’s conquests and integration into a macroregional “international” system during the New Kingdom, the Ptolemaic and Roman dominations, the Christianization and later Islamization of Egypt, and modern revitalization initiatives. By analysing how major societal transformations affected and were reflected in the vocabulary of basic concepts, the project seeks to outline a longue durée sociolinguistic (hi)story of Egyptian from Prehistory to Modernity.

Edited Volumes

- II.B.3 – Contact linguistics and the human past: Integrating multidisciplinary perspectives beyond record history – collected volume co-edited with Rasmus Gudmundsen Bjørn (Max Planck Institute in Jena, Germany). The volume is composed of papers written by various scholars exploring how historical linguistic data can be used to reveal the unrecorded history of human communities in different contexts and periods, from pre-colonial realities to deep prehistory. The volume will discuss several theoretical and methodological issues and approaches, and it thus aims at being groundbreaking contribution to the field. Contract signed with De Gruyter. Expected publication: September 2026.
- II.B.2 – 2024 – Current Research in Egyptology 2023 – Proceedings of the Twenty-Third Annual Symposium, University of Basel, 10-14 September 2023, Oxford: Archaeopress. Co-editors: Lauren Dogaer, Cyprian Fong, Elena Hertel, Geirr Lunden - (conference proceedings)
- II.B.1 – 2019 – A Stranger in the House: The Crossroads III, Prague: Czech Institute of Egyptology. Co-editors: Jana Mynářová, Sergio Alivernini - (conference proceedings)

Monographs and Edited Volumes in Preparation

- II.C.1 – Ancient Egyptian: A Sociolinguistic Biography – the aim of the volume is to present an overview of the sociolinguistic history of Ancient Egyptian based on the most recent research. The volume will appear in the monograph series Kitab of the University of Pisa – planned submission: Fall 2026
- II.C.2 – A Handbook of Historical Sociolinguistics – the aim of this volume is to provide a reference tool for students and scholars interested in the way languages and societies interacted in premodern realities, and on the insights that historical linguistics can give us on the human past– currently discussing a publication agreement
